

A Dutch Wedding.

All marriages are made in Heaven—but the adage runs—but the Democrat tells of one that was made in Chicago—which is a very different place indeed.

In the family of a very respectable citizen of this place, lived, as a servant, a young and pretty Swiss girl, who was engaged in marriage to a lover of hers who is at present in St. Louis, and with whom she kept up a constant correspondence. A few days since Katrine fell ill, and her kind employers sent her to bed, employed a physician, and used every exertion to restore her to health and happiness—for her disease seemed to be as much a fever of the mind as of the body. At the end of four days the doctor pronounced the patient well, and, much against her will, compelled her to sit down to some sewing. Watching her opportunity, Katrine escaped from the house, and fled to that of a neighbor, into whose bed she crept, and where she remained, deaf to all expostulations and entreaties, for three days longer. At length her entertainer lost all patience, and procured an order for her removal to the Hospital. Armed with this document, she was returning to her home, when she met an acquaintance, a German, who had the day before buried his wife, and who had three small children thus left motherless. Into his sympathetic ear the lady poured her story of her unwelcome visitor, and asked him to come along with her and help send Miss Katrine to the hospital.

But on arriving at the house where Katrine lay, her youth and beauty struck the fancy of the susceptible widower, and his heart melted within him. A conversation ensued, at the end of which the widower intimated his willingness to heal his bruised affections by the smiles and caresses of another spouse.

"Will you do it?" exclaimed Katrine, springing from the bed. "Do you like me? Look at me. Do you like me?"

The widowed spouse did like her—but so much eagerness rather shocked him, and he prudently resolved to sleep over it.

He announced his determination; said he would return in the morning if he decided to again commit matrimony, and departed, leaving the fair Katrine plunged into the deepest despondency and doubt and a feather-bed.

But in the morning the reckless man returned, whom one marriage had not made wise, and without much circumlocution declared himself ready to wed again. Katrine joyfully embraced him and his offers, rose, donned her robes, and at once set forth with him to his domicile, where immediately the twain were made one flesh.

Lawrence Nursery,

Situated two miles west of Lawrence, on the California Road, between Lawrence and Leecompton.

THE PROPRIETOR WOULD CALL THE attention of all those intending to purchase TREES, PLANTS, ETC., to his stock of Fruit Trees, Shrubs, Roses, Grape Vines, Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries, Blackberries, and other hardy plants of various kinds, all of which have been raised on Kansas soil, hence will bear transplanting much better than those raised out of the Territory.

No pains nor expense have been spared in obtaining such varieties of Summer, Fall and Winter Fruit, as have proved to do well in the West. The trees are all grafted from old bearing orchards, and are unsurpassed for size, vigor, health, and beauty, and as such they are offered to the public at better rates than any other Nursery.
